Forecasting: Accurate Birth Times

Finding accurate birth times is a challenge when researching world leaders and celebrities.

Royal families record birth times with great accuracy and have for centuries due to their understanding of astrology. These times are made public, while many do not make this birth data public.

Forecasting: Accurate Birth Times

This is why finding accurate birth times for two people in a relationship who are in or had steady, supportive and happy relationships is challenging. Consider that the moment the couple met and the date of their wedding are also instrumental.

Often you will locate birth times on the hour (4:00 am, 7:00 pm) or half hour (6:30 am, 11:30 pm) as is the custom in many countries when recording a birth time. There is no way to ascertain their accuracy.

Forecasting: Accurate Location

Secondly, in order to create Solar and Lunar return charts you need to know the person's exact location for the start of each chart. This can be especially challenging for Lunar Returns which occur so frequently.

So, the research is painstaking and not always fruitful.

It is why I chose King Charles as our first case study for the module on Career and Pivotal Live Events. His exact location (and birth time) could be ascertained for each Solar and Lunar Return chart.

Accurate Birth Times + Location

For this reason, as we create forecast windows using Solar and Lunar Returns, in this module we will cover a mixture of case studies from both my own clients - whose accurate birth and location data could be ascertained - and people who are well-known where such data was made public.

Solar/Lunar Return Case Study Relationships

Forecasting vs. Compatibility

When it comes to love astrology (and professional relationship astrology), there are several indicators of how the union evolves and how it feels to each person in the relationship.

Forecasting the impact of the relationship can only be revealed for each unique person. Separate readings are given for each person in the relationship (often it is just one person in the relationship who seeks support and insights).

Forecasting vs. Compatibility

In Solar and Lunar Return Forecasting charts are created interdependently from each other and do not require the accurate birth information or location data for the other person in the relationship.

This is why Forecasting with Solar and Lunar Returns introduces a powerful additional support tool for those seeking feedback about important relationships in their life.

We will be studying Relationship Forecasting Case Studies in this module.

Forecasting vs. Compatibility

The well-known technique for compatibility in astrology is the synastry chart - an overlay of one birth chart with the other. Two “bi-wheel” charts are created - one from each person’s birth chart perspective. Synastry reveals profound and illuminating insights on how two people interact with each other.

The other technique is the composite chart where the midpoints for all planets and houses from both natal charts are calculated to create a new stand-alone chart. The composite chart represents the relationship as a unit.

Your focus is on work and career, so you may withdraw more emotionally with family and life at home to focus your energy on your projects, also due to increased responsibilities with work or family. You want a certain amount of solitude to consider deeply how to proceed.

Client B: Solar Return 2022

Solar and Lunar returns are also great to use for forecasting windows of time that financial flow may be slower or the energy more restricted.

What is important to note is by knowing of such an upcoming period, you can plan ahead, get finances in order, put money aside and/or just work more to help the energy move.

Client B: Solar Return 2022

Client B experienced such more challenging abundance window time period in a Solar Return year that began in 2022.

Within that SR year, Client B was given three Lunar Return months that had good financial flow potential. Subsequently Client B not only planned more income generating projects but also timed them to the positive Lunar Return months. Client B had unexpected expenses that Solar Return Year and was able to weather them well with the Lunar Return calendar.
